Matt Roloff, star of the hit TV series â€œLittle People, Big Worldâ€•, was arrested last month for driving under the influence of intoxicants (DUII), deputies reported today.

Roloffâ€™s 2005 Chevrolet van â€œwas failing to drive within its travel laneâ€•, the release stated.

Roloff allegedly failed the field sobriety test and was arrested for DUII. He was transported to the Washington County Jail where, according to deputies, he refused to take the breath test. Roloff was cited and released for DUII, refusing the breath test, and failure to drive within the lane.

Attempts to reach Roloff by telephone an email were unsuccessful. A phone number listed for Roloff Farms is no longer in service, and emails sent were unanswered.

Roloff and his family, wife Amy, daughter Molly, twin sons Zach and Jeremy, and youngest child Jacob, are featured on The Learning Channelâ€™s television show that focuses on the familyâ€™s life on their 33-acre farm in Oregon. Pegged by TLC as an â€œextraordinary family composed of both little and average-sized peopleâ€•, the Roloffâ€™s share how Matt, Amy, and Zach live as Little People with dwarfism living in a world of normal-sized people.
