

5 German children found dead

by UPI

DARRY, Germany -- Five young children were found dead in a house in Germany and their mother is suspected of killing them. Police said it appeared the children, ages 3-9, had suffered "violent" deaths, the BBC reported Thursday. Their bodies were found in a house in the village of Darry, the British network said. Their 31-year-old mother had been taken into custody and placed in a psychiatric facility, the BBC said. "As far as currently known, the motive is to be sought in the mother's mental illness," police said in a statement. Last year, a Germany mother was jailed for allegedly killing eight of her children.

Copyright © 2007, by United Press International. All Rights Reserved.

5 German children found dead by UPI