

Woman sentenced for swinging baby

by UPI

ERIE, Pa. -- A Pennsylvania woman was sentenced to up to 10 years in prison for seriously hurting her infant son by swinging him like a baseball bat. Chytoria Graham, 28, was convicted of breaking the skull of her 4-week-old son, Jarron Troop, during a fight with the child's father in her Erie, Pa., apartment last year, the Erie Times-News reported Wednesday. Graham, a mother of five, was convicted of aggravated assault and other charges. The assault conviction carried a five-year mandatory minimum sentence due to the child's age, the newspaper said.

Copyright © 2007, by United Press International. All Rights Reserved.

Woman sentenced for swinging baby by UPI