

Bomb scare closes Florida beach

by UPI

RIVIERA, Fla. -- A Florida beach was closed for a time Friday after a container marked "explosives" washed ashore near a condo complex. The container was marked "If found, call police" and that's just what beachcombers did when they discovered it on the shoreline in Riviera. The South Florida Sun-Sentinel said the Palm Beach County bomb squad inspected the container to make sure it wasn't a bomb and then hauled it away. It was not clear what the 2-foot-long container had once contained.
