

Home Zone: Concern for the environment shows up in colors

by Maggie_Reed

As the world turns green, the world of color is following suit.

COLOR - Trends for 2008 include warmer metallics including Watty's Copper Pearl product which offers an alternative to normal interior finishes with its multidimensional effect. CNS Photo courtesy of Watty. STRANGE - Certain items have a strange appeal, including this giant fish pillow from Baron Bob. CNS Photo courtesy of baronbob.com. A genuine concern for the environment is showing up in the colors we will choose in 2008. Greens, blues, warmer metallics and more ethnic accents top the list, according to Color Marketing Group, an international association of color professionals.

"Our members specify color for everything from paint and furniture to cars and carpets," said Jaime Stephens, executive director of CMG. "They track trends several years ahead, and they've rarely been wrong in more than 43 years."

So what's ahead? Here's what CMG has to say:

- Looking green: People want things to look "green" no matter what the color is. Being stylish in 2008 means being natural. Materials will not only look natural, but they will also feature lots of texture and imperfections. Colors will be those that appear in nature, such as off-whites, sand, rock, soil and brownish-greens.

- The blues: Blues remind us of sky and water and remain prominent, even in the kitchen. This year there is an emergence of a deep, vibrant navy so dark you'll swear it's black.

- Specialized finishes and warmer metallics: Shimmery and specialized finishes are already hot, thanks to advances in technology, but in 2008 the metallics will go warmer. Look for brushed chrome and nickel, copper and bronze tones to prevail.

- More ethnic accents: Globalism thrives and is coming to us from India, China and Latin America. Colors adding punch are Moroccan reds and oranges, rosy pinks, sunny golden yellows and lots of turquoise.

For more information, call 703-329-8500 or visit www.colormarketing.org.

PILLOW TALK

Talk about an eye-catching accessory! These pillows are big enough to swamp a small child. The bluegill is 40 inches long and 19 inches wide; the walleye is 48 inches long and 14 inches wide; the pike, 48 inches long by 12 inches wide. There are also dolphin, marlin, rainbow trout and angelfish pillows. And - bonus - each pillow comes with fun information on that specific type of fish. (Did you know the walleye is the largest member of the perch family?) They're $20 at www.baronbob.com.

Maggie Reed can be reached by e-mail, at 619-718-5821; or P.O. Box 120190, San Diego, CA 92112.

Â© Copley News Service

Home Zone: Concern for the environment shows up in colors by Maggie_Reed