

Woman charged with dirty diaper assault

by UPI

WOODBURY, N.J. - An employee of a New Jersey assisted living facility has been charged with hitting a resident with a dirty diaper. Karen Long was indicted this week, The Philadelphia Inquirer reported. The alleged assault took place in December at Woodbury Mews in Woodbury. Another employee reported that Long, while working an overnight shift, hit an elderly man with a diaper. The victim, 87, was in the unit for residents with dementia.
