

House passes resolution urging restoration of timber payments

by Bend_Weekly_News_Sources

SALEM — The Oregon House of Representatives today passed a resolution urging Congress to fully restore timber payments to Oregon counties. HJM 100 passed the House 57-0.

State Rep. Jean Cowan (D-Newport) said the timber payments were part of an agreement reached to curtail logging in Oregon and other states, and the counties relying on those funds feel betrayed by the federal government's refusal to fund the Secure Rural Schools and Community Self-Determination Act.

“The federal government struck a deal — they told us we couldn't cut the timber, but that they would pay to make up the difference. They have broken that deal. Now Oregon counties are dramatically impacted by the loss of those federal funds,” said Rep. Cowan. “Without reauthorization of the County Payments, critical public safety programs will be cut. Education and health care services will suffer. County roads and bridges will continue to deteriorate at an increased rate. Counties provide a critical backbone for the State of Oregon — and they need our help now.”

In 2006, Oregon counties received more than $220 million through the program. Members of Oregon's congressional delegation have been working for the past year to get the payments restored. Now, in the latest version of the President's budget for 2008-2009, the program has been scaled back to only $200 million nationwide, meaning Oregon counties continue to face the threat of severely reduced payments.

House Speaker Jeff Merkley testified in support of the bill in the House Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee last week, telling legislators that this is a personal issue to him, growing up in a family that worked in the timber industry as a young boy in Roseburg. Back then, he said, it was the timber industry that was unstable and unpredictable.

“Now, rural Oregon families are finding out that the federal government is equally unpredictable and unreliable,” said Speaker Merkley. “In Josephine County, they told us that they were going to have to shut down the juvenile facility, the library, cut the Sheriff’s department in half, cut the prosecutor’s office down to two attorneys,” Merkley said. “We need a united voice – a strong voice – to say, this is not acceptable.”

“This is not a subsidy or a government give-away,” said State Rep. Arnie Roblan (D-Coos Bay), chair of the House Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee. “This is a long-standing agreement between our state and the federal government that they are breaking. Oregon has lived up to its end of the agreement. Now it is time for the federal government to live up to their end.”

Oregon House Democrats voted unanimously to pass HJM 100.

House passes resolution urging restoration of timber payments by Bend_Weekly_News_Sources