

COCC & LBCC Offer Radiological Technology Degree

by Bend Weekly News Sources

Central Oregon Community College is partnering with Linn-Benton Community College to offer an associate of general studies degree in diagnostic imaging (radiological technology).

Admission to the program is competitive, and enrollment is limited. Applicants will be considered based on application requirements, which include residency, high school transcript, prerequisite courses, support courses and work and/or volunteer experience.

Areas of study include radiation protection, radiographic procedures, image production and evaluation, equipment maintenance operation, patient care and management, and clinical radiography.

The deadline for applications is Monday, June 18. Classes begin fall term 2007. For information, call Taran Underdal at 383-7256.
