Although it seems simple, cooking rice can sometimes be a daunting task. But not with the Induction Heating (IH) System Rice Cooker & Warmer from Zojirushi.

One of the unit's most useful characteristics is found in the variety of settings that provide specific cooking temperatures for different types of rice, including white, brown, mixed, sweet and others.

For example, it can "activate" brown rice by placing it on the GABA brown setting. The programmed temperature of 104 degrees Fahrenheit for two hours increases GABA (gamma-aminobutyric acid), one of the key amino acids in brown rice, by 150 percent over nonactivated rice.

The new IH System Rice Cooker & Warmer is equipped with a wide range of features that ensure you get perfect rice every time, including:

• Superior induction heating technology

• Healthy cooking options for brown rice, GABA brown rice and germinated brown rice

â€” Multimenu cooking functions for white rice (regular, softer or harder), mixed rice, sushi rice, porridge, sweet rice and quick cooking

â€” Easy-to-clean, clear-coated stainless steel exterior

â€” Thick, black spherical inner cooking pan

â€” Detachable and washable inner lid

â€” Easy to read LCD control panel for clock and timer functions

â€” Interchangeable melody and beep signal

â€” Delay timer (2 settings)

â€” Automatic keep warm and extended keep warm

â€” Accessories like spatula, spatula holder and rice measuring cup

The Rice Cooker & Warmer is available in 5.5- or 10-cup capacity models. Retail price is around $280.
