BEND, Ore. — Police are asking the public's assistance in locating a 25-year old woman who allegedly became belligerent after being evicted from a party at a northwest Bend residence, broke a window with a beer bottle, then forced her way in the door and threatened several residents while brandishing a knife.

Aimee Marie Mattson, shown here in a DCJ mugshot from a 2007 arrest for allegedly driving under the influence of intoxicants. According to Bend Police Sgt. Kurt Koester, officers were called to 1436 NW Baltimore Avenue about 1:10 a.m., March 24, in response to a call regarding armed subjects who were attempting to enter the residence.

Officers learned several people got "every intoxicated" at a party, and Aimee Marie Mattson, 25, of Bend and Gladstone, Oregon, and a friend were physically removed the party "due to their behavior", Koester reported.

Mattson was angry about being kicked out of the party and allegedly broke the window, re-entered, and threatened the other party-goers with a knife, the sergeant said. She fled the area before officers arrived.

Anyone with information about Mattson's whereabouts is asked to contact the Bend Police Department.

If apprehended, she may face charges including first-degree burglary, first-degree criminal mischief, menacing, and unlawful use of a weapon.
