$300,000 grant will fund 23 agencies throughout the nation to support home ownership opportunity

NeighborImpact of Redmond, Oregon -- formerly Central Oregon Community Action Agency Network (COCAAN) -- will receive $5,000 as part of a $300,000 grant made to NeighborWorks America to support the NeighborWorks Campaign for Home Ownership and the NeighborWorks Training Institute, made possible by the Bank of America Charitable Foundation.

The NeighborWorks Campaign for Home Ownership, launched in 1993, has resulted in more than $10 billion in home loans and helped nearly 100,000 people become homeowners. More than 91 percent of the homeowners assisted by the Campaign were first-time homebuyers, and 90 percent of the families served by the program had low- or moderate-incomes.

"Home ownership is crucial in helping low- and moderate-income families build assets and move toward financial self-sufficiency," said Elizabeth Ferrer, Bank of America National Programs executive. "We are delighted to partner with NeighborWorks, an organization that has a proven track record of effectiveness in increasing affordable home ownership."

The grant, announced Thursday, will provide contributions of $15,000 for each of sixteen Home Ownership Centers in key urban markets, $5,000 grants for seven rural Home Ownership Centers and $25,000 to support the NeighborWorks Training Institute. Through the institute, NeighborWorks America offers training, certification and other resources to thousands of community development professionals who work to revitalize their communities.

"The NeighborWorks Home Ownership Centers provide a comprehensive set of services, from credit counseling to post-purchase support, to assist lower- income families on the path to purchasing and maintaining a home," said NeighborWorks of America CEO Ken Wade. "With the generous support of the Bank of America Charitable Foundation, NeighborWorks America will empower low- and moderate-income families to achieve homeownership, build wealth and strengthen their communities."
