

Wildlife Viewfinder Guide: Fritillary flight, brush-footed butterflies

by Tim Herd

Possessing forelegs that are not much more than pollen brushes, the large family of brush-footed butterflies includes the creatively named subfamilies of admirals, anglewings, checkers, crescents, ladies and fritillaries – whose tawny wings have black or silvery spots. Speyeria cybele

Wildlife Viewfinder Guide: Fritillary flight, brush-footed butterflies by Tim Herd