

Pregnant Ohio woman disappears

NORTH CANTON, Ohio - An Ohio woman who is nine-months pregnant was missing Sunday, two days after her mother found her 2-year-old son home alone.

Jessie Marie Davis, 26

Stark County Sheriff Tim Swanson said Jessie Marie Davis, 26, of North Canton was last heard from Wednesday when she talked to her mother, Patty Porter, by cell phone, Fox News reported Sunday. Porter discovered her daughter was missing Friday when she went to her home and found her son alone.

"At this point it's just very frightening because they don't have any actual suspects," said Jane Davis, Jesse Davis' sister.

Porter said when she asked her grandson where his mother was, he answered, "Mommy broke the table, and Mommy's in the rug."

The house showed no sign of forced entry, but Jesse Davis' cell phone, comforter and sheets were missing. Her purse and vehicle were found at the home.

"The mattress was partially off the bed and the nightstand was knocked over and the lamp was knocked over and somebody had poured bleach all over the floor," Porter said.

The father of the missing woman's toddler and unborn child is a Canton, Ohio, police officer. He and his wife, from whom he is separated, are not suspects in the disappearance, Fox said.
