Chacon of SW Peridot in Redmond and charged him with second-degree assault (a Class B felony), unlawful use of a weapon (a Class C felony), and intimidation (a Class A misdemeanor), Redmond Police Detective Lt. Wayne Shortreed said.

Detectives believe Petite and Chacon were in the Tumble Inn Tavern the night before the accident when Chacon struck the victim with a hand-held weapon. "It is also alleged the assault was racially motivated," Shortreed said.

Chacon was arrested at his home about 3 p.m. Tuesday and was lodged in the Deschutes County Jail.

“At this time it is still undetermined why Mr. Petite was lying on the railroad tracks. The investigation will continue as information is gathered,” said the lieutenant.
