Funding Targets Basic Needs – Food, Shelter & Safety

BEND, Ore. – The United Way of Deschutes County announced an 8% increase in funding commitments for 2007-08. The $1,084,000 package—the largest ever for Deschutes County—includes more than $700,000 in allocations and grants for the United Way’s 23 partner agencies and $384,000 in contributions earmarked by donors.

In response to the relentless increase in human service needs in Deschutes County, the United Way’s 35-member Allocations Committee awarded the greatest increases to programs that provide food, housing; and services to victims of child abuse and their families.

NeighborImpact will receive $91,242 for emergency services and the regional foodbank program. The KIDS Center, a child advocacy agency that provides assessment, treatment and prevention programs that address child abuse and neglect, will receive a total of $78,454.

“The United Way of Deschutes County may give the funds to agencies,” stated Allocations Committee Chairman Mike Stanley of Selco Credit Union. “Yet in reality, the agencies earn their allocations by delivering programs that meet important unmet needs and change lives in the community.”

Last year, NeighborImpact distributed 1,246,000 pounds of food—a 15% increase—to local food pantries that helped feed more than 22,000 people. The agency also provided emergency assistance to 2,828 households with rental vouchers or utility assistance.

The KIDS Center provided medical evaluations for alleged abuse to 301 Deschutes County children last year—an increase of 19%—and provided therapy for 179. The United Way funding should help to lessen the time span between referral and first appointment, which occasionally took as long as three weeks during 2006—well above the normal 10-day period.
