MARBLE FALLS, Texas - A man wanted in Texas for allegedly killing a bartender may be linked to the deaths of four other people, it was reported Monday. Paul G. Devoe III, 43, is accused of killing a bartender in Marble Falls, Texas, Friday night, the Austin (Texas) American-Statesmen reported. Sunday night, four bodies were found in a Jonestown-area house and police say Devoe may be responsible for their deaths, said Roger Wade, a spokesman for the Travis County Sheriff's office. Police, who have not identified the victims, nor said how they died, were looking for a white 2001 Saturn station wagon with the Texas plate number Y43-ZWV. The four bodies were found after a relative asked police to go to the home and check on them.
